Forensic audit finds problems but little crime

Investigation concludes bad decisions, absence of oversight led to losses

By Stewart Dobson
Editor

(June 13, 2019) Many of the problems identified by the year-long forensic audit of the finances of Ocean Pines' Food and Beverage and Public Works departments had already been corrected by the time the final audit report was released to association members last week.

Board of Directors President Doug Parks

In fact, the board of directors' hiring of the Matt Ortt Companies last year to operate the restaurants at the Yacht Club and Beach Club rendered moot many of the $200,000 investigation's most troubling findings, since the Ortt companies immediately wiped out the clubs' huge losses that were at the heart of the demand for the audit.

In addition, accounting procedures were stiffened, accountability between management and the board was restored and grand plan budgeting had been brought back to earth before the Baltimore accounting firm Gross Mendelsohn concluded that bad management, not illegal behavior, was the primary reason food and beverage operations and the public works department lost in excess of $700,000 in fiscal year 2018.

"It speaks for itself," Board of Directors President Doug Parks said of

Berlin council OKs $15.2M budget

Taxes, fees up, as spending drops about 16 percent to produce balanced package

By Rachel Ravina
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) The Berlin mayor and council adopted a $15.2 million budget for fiscal year 2020 at their meeting Monday night.

The budget represents a 16.26 percent decrease from the fiscal year 2019's $18.2 million budget, according to budget reports. Roughly $3 million was cut for the upcoming fiscal year.

Within the general fund, multiple departments made cuts to the fiscal year 2020 budget. The general fund had about $6.2 million approved for fiscal year 2020 as opposed to the roughly $7.2 million for fiscal year 2019, according to budget reports. That's a 13.80 percent decrease.

The parks and recreation department decreased by 36.84 percent, the police department was cut by 11.02 percent and the economic development department's budget decreased by 18.24 percent. However, Mayor Gee Williams said the two New Year's Eve ball drops stayed in the budget for next year.

Additionally, the property tax rate for the fiscal year 2020 budget was set

Edward Solum running for OP board

By Morgan Pilz
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) Edward Solum, 73, believes the Ocean Pines Board of Directors needs to be more thorough and transparent with projects and other aspects which could affect the community, prompting him to run.

Initially a seasonal resident, Solum, now retired after 45 years as a lawyer, wants to make a contribution to the association with his experiences. Having graduated from law school at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Solum believes there needs to be more openness regarding funds used toward infrastructure and other costly projects.

"In light of the fact that Ocean Pines has been here for 50 years - that's a long time - we're starting to realize that some major issues with regards to infrastructure are becoming apparent and I think that resolutions to some of those issues is going to require some introduction of some capital infusion," Solum said.

"Whenever you talk about spending other people's money, it always becomes a hot topic. I think there needs to be a diligent and intense effort made to establish what all the relevant facts are with regard to how other people's money is being spent."

Solum knows this year has thrown some curveballs for the current board of directors, particularly with the issue of finding a permanent general manager and the introduction of a traffic roundabout concept. That is part of the job, he said.

"When you're a member of the board, when you first come on to the board, there are a lot of things that happen during the period of your service that maybe you didn't anticipate," Solum said. "As the year progresses, issues progress and manifest themselves and it requires intense study and evaluation before proper decisions."

One of his main focuses is to bring more transparency to the processes the board undergoes when determining projects and other major decisions.

"I've always believed that a thorough investigation and consideration of all the relevant facts will generally lead to the best conclusion, devoid of any emotional, personal or political considerations," Solum said.

This being said, Solum says he has

Financial investigation finds no theft of missing deposits

the audit report this week. He also was referring the report's total debunking of allegations that employee theft was a major contributor to a budgetary loss of more than $1 million in FY 2018.

On the contrary, Gross Mendelsohn blamed the poor fiscal performance on bad decision making and equally questionable budgeting, along with a lack of oversight in critical areas during the tenure of then interim General Manager Brett Hill.

Hired last April to determine if criminal behavior occurred in the Public Works Department or was behind the unprecedented losses at the Beach Club and Yacht Club in FY 2018 (May 1, 2017-April 30, 2018), the firm found instead that the clubs' deficits resulted from Hill's plan to convert them into big money-makers by, among other things, adding table service and evening dining at the Beach Club.

"The changes resulted in the Beach Club nearly doubling its number of employees and labor costs. The interim General Manager budgeted that the changes would result in a 65 percent increase in revenue," the report said.

Instead, the report continued, revenue went in the other direction at the once profitable Beach Club, which posted a net loss of $107,601. By contrast, the club had a positive net income of $114,246 in FY 2017.

At the Yacht Club, the audit found that "an absence of management oversight" allowed food and beverage costs to climb, as did labor expense.

The cost of personnel at the Yacht Club in FY 2017 was 49 percent of revenue as compared to 68 percent in FY 2018. Because of this, and failure to control food costs, the club lost $335,221 in FY 2018 on sales of almost $1.3 million.

Other financial issues in the food and beverage department, including the institution of member discounts of 20 percent, combined to produce a net loss for the year of $784,660, more than six-and-a-half times its losses in the previous year, the investigation concluded.

That includes the $110,000 the OPA had to pay the Food and Beverage Department Director Brian Townsend in severance following his January 2018 dismissal.

Because of an employment agreement Hill gave to Townsend in See RESTAURANT Page 7

As of July 1, the water utility's rate will go up 5 percent, and the sewer utility's rate will rise by 25 percent for the fiscal year 2020 budget.

As for the utility funds, the town's water fund budget decreased by 18.79 percent for fiscal year 2020, according to budget reports. There was about $1.2 million approved for fiscal year 2019 and nearly $916,000 approved for fiscal year 2020.

The sewer fund budget decreased by 7.72 percent, or about $200,000, budget reports show. There was about $2.6 million approved for fiscal year 2019 and approximately $2.4 million for fiscal year 2020.

Berlin's electric utility's budget decreased by 7.12 percent, according to budget reports. There was about $5.7 million approved for fiscal year 2019 and about $5.3 million approved for fiscal year 2020.

The stormwater fund budget for next year also decreased by 71.69 percent, or about $1.2 million, according to budget reports. There was about $1.6 million approved for fiscal year 2019's budget and nearly $455,000 approved for fiscal year 2020.

During the public hearing portion of the several townspeople empathized with the council.

"I am not going to sell my house or leave town," Resident Jim Meckly said in a statement. "I am going to pay the higher property taxes and utility costs and continue to enjoy this great place to live."

Although, Meckly took issue with Williams' behavior over the course of the budget process.

"However when someone differs with your opinion, they are often recipients of verbal, written or public abusive lectures and rants," Meckly said in a statement. "I find this distasteful and unbecoming of a public official."

Berlin resident Marie Velong agreed and urged members of the Town Council not to patronize community members.

"It discourages people from participating in their government," Velong said.

Meckly also offered several economic suggestions to the Town Council.

"Use what we have, stop the excessive buying, live within our means, be frugal, and use common sense," Meckly said in a statement.

"Spending is not the issue because we're really frugal," Councilman Troy Purnell said.

Berlin resident Jason Walter questioned the 18 percent property tax increase as compared to other towns throughout the state.

"I only worry about Berlin here ... Berlin is unique to any other municipality in the state or world," Purnell said.

"I want to thank you very much for your very thoughtful comments," Williams said. "One thing I think has been very beneficial to this whole 16 weeks considering where we started we're getting a lot more very thoughtful and considerate recommendations we will ... [consider] in future budgets."

Councilman Dean Burrell agreed.

"During this budget process we have had more participation at our meeting than any time in history since I've been [on] the council and I think that's a good thing," Burrell said.

However, he added he hopes the participation continues even though the fiscal year 2020 budget process concluded.

"So I implore you to keep coming back," Burrell said.

Burrell moved to adopt the budget for fiscal year 2020. It was approved with a 4-1 vote, with Councilman Zack Tyndall dissenting.

Shawn Kotwica; 6. Edward Solum; 7. Gregory Turner.

After the draw, the elections committee distributed copies of the election rules to the candidates.

Candidates were given information on how they can campaign, where signs are allowed and how questions will be answered at forums. No one candidate will have more information than the others, Ocean Pines Election Committee Chairman Steve Habeger said.

In addition, association President Doug Parks and Vice President Steve Tuttle provided the candidates with some advice should they earn one of the three seats available this election.

"It has been a journey," Tuttle, who was elected to the board last August, said. "I consider it quite a privilege to serve on this board. I entered into the process thinking it is a job. It has been a huge learning curve for me. It's been a lot of learning.

"I don't think I had a full sense of the amount of time would be required serving on the board," he continued. "This year we've taken on some pretty large projects and I've been involved in a couple of them ... it's almost a full-time job."

"You're not really aware of the level of effort that's going to be required," Parks said. "As issues come up and levels of importance of those issues change, the interaction between the membership between the board members and members of the constituency do take up a lot time. The ability to communicate with each other so we are aware of the different positions on issues is a big plus."

According to Habeger, ballots for the election will be mailed to all association members in good standing during the week of July 8. Ballots must be received – not mailed – by the close of business on Aug. 7.

Ballots may be returned either to the ballot box inside the police department office in the Ocean Pines Administration Building on 239 Ocean Parkway, or mailed to the Ocean Pines post office box in Berlin.

The cutoff for voter eligibility is Wednesday, July 3.

Additional upcoming election dates include the following:

- Second Candidate's Forum: June 22, 10 a.m. in the Assateague Room of the Ocean Pines Community Center on 235 Ocean Parkway
  - Ballots counted and announced: Aug. 9 at 10 a.m. in the East Room of the Ocean Pines Community Center on 235 Ocean Parkway
  - Election results validated: Aug. 10 at 10 a.m. during the Annual Meeting of Membership in the Assateague Room of the Ocean Pines Community Center on 235 Ocean Parkway

Board signs Viola for additional six months, until Dec.

By Morgan Pilz

(June 13, 2019) Ocean Pines Association interim General Manager John Viola agreed to a six-month extension of his services with the board of directors last Thursday while the association searches for a more permanent replacement.

John Viola

The terms of the agreement between Viola and the board are good through Dec. 1.

Viola, a former budget and finance advisory committee chairman and current association treasurer, has served as interim general manager since March.

As general manager, Viola will execute and administer policies of Ocean Pines as set by the board of directors and governing documents. He will handle hiring, evaluation and termination of employees as necessary, and oversee financial and business operations of Ocean Pines.

noticed some discord between the current board and former members which could lead to confusion.

"I noted that there is an effort by former members of the board that has been undertaken as a self-motivated action," he said. "I look at that as an issue ... because you can't govern if you can't come to an equilibrium with regards of understanding the facts and procedures to the point where discord and confusion controls the situation.

"I think it is absolutely paramount that anybody elected to the board has to come on with philosophy of cooperation to eliminate independent efforts from outside the board," Solum continued. "There's got to be cohesion and cooperation."

Restaurant woes rendered moot with Ortt hiring

March 2017 without the board's authorization, according to the auditors, the OPA had little choice but to pay him $70,000 in severance and $40,000 in commissions, along with 12 months of health insurance coverage for another $16,800.

The only money Gross Mendelsohn could not account for in its examination of Food and Beverage Department records was $26,550 in missing bank deposits, although it assured the board that no OPA employees had taken it.

It backed that up by reporting that the two finance office personnel who handled the deposits passed lie detector tests administered by the Worcester County Bureau of Investigation, and that surveillance video recorded on the days in question showed no suspicious activity.

"Our investigation of the missing bank deposits did not uncover any evidence that any of the missing money was taken by any OPA employee," the auditors reported.

They did say bank employees may not have followed bank procedures, but did not name the bank or suggest that it was responsible.

One area where missing money was accounted for was when the petty cash fund at the Yacht Club came up $5,262 short. The manager at the time confessed to having spent it for personal use and was fired.

Another recurring situation during Hill's administration was purchases made and transactions conducted that should have been cleared by the board but were never submitted.

This was one of the problems, along with some conflicts of interest, the auditors found in the Public Works Department in FY 2018.

The general tone of the 47 pages of summaries, financials and recommendations was that many standard policies and procedures were not followed and that decisions were made without the board's knowledge.

Corrective action began to take place, however, when the board hired the Ortt companies in April 2018 to operate the restaurants. Then, in June last year, current General Manager John Viola stepped in as the association treasurer, after serving a stint as finance director, and instituted more procedural changes.

Parks acknowledges that the audit is more of an autopsy of what went wrong than it is a prescription for restoring the OPA's financial health, which is already much more robust.

It's also the end of a chapter he does not want to revisit.

"We understood the public's concerns," he said, "and we did our due diligence."

Berlin Town Council approves FY20 authorized contracts

Several officials also agree to further discuss options

By Rachel Ravina
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) The Berlin Town Council on Tuesday unanimously approved fiscal year 2020's budget contract authorizations, which are valued at a maximum of $386,400.

"This is a standard practice the town has followed for [the] past several years," Town Administrator Laura Allen said.

The following contracts for the fiscal year 2020 were up for approval, according to the motion:

- Angel's Touch Cleaning Services – $54,000
  - Booth and Associates, LLC. – not to exceed $54,000
  - Cards Technology – $38,400 annual service agreement and continuity
  - Davis, Bowen & Friedel Inc. – not to exceed $100,000
  - EA Engineering Science and Technology Inc. PBC. – not to exceed $100,000
  - Worcester Youth and Family Counseling Services – $40,000
- Councilman Zack Tyndall opted for a more aggressive approach to the bidding process by bidding out projects every fiscal year.

However, town officials said the bidding process is so time-consuming that it may not be practical in these instances.

Councilman Elroy Brittingham also suggested seeking advice from other towns on how to deal with this.

Allen said the town has no one with the technical knowledge in some instances to write the request for bids. Using Cards Technology as an example, Allen said since that company would be bidding on the contract, it could not write the bid specifications.

"It's sort of a chicken-and-egg issue," Allen said.

After further clarification, Tyndall moved to approve the contract authorization. Councilman Dean Burrell also requested a written performance evaluation of the contracts from town staff "to accompany the proposals."

Once those have been viewed and approved, Allen would have several weeks to go through bidding procedures and have a separate discussion at a later date with council members if necessary.

you is another bonus. You could walk out here tomorrow," President Doug Parks said. "The idea would be can we do something to have that continuity and that was the genesis of what we put together.

Parks and other members of the board organized a special meeting to prepare an agreement extending Viola's service until the end of the year, citing his successes since accepting the temporary position.

"One of the things we wanted to do was continue the continuity that we've started," Parks said. "We've seen a lot of success based on when we first didn't have a GM and when we put a transition management team in place. Then we worked closely with John and other members of the staff to try and put this structure together with the intent of building the right strata within the organization so that decisions can be made across the organization rather than at one point.

"John was instrumental in making sure that responsibilities were put in the right areas of the organization and actually bolstered his ability to have things go through, and we noticed right away, more and more things were happening," he continued. "They were minor things, but every little thing that gets done is a plus, so the accumulative effect of all of those minor advances was a big advantage."

More importantly, the agreement will allow the association to search for a more permanent replacement without rushing the process.

"It prevents us from taking somebody who has been intimately involved in a lot of these things out of the equation in the middle of all these projects and bringing somebody new in," Parks said. "We're not putting out fires and trying to back-fill something, we're actually taking a more proactive approach and not only are we not rushing, but we're actually getting some insight from somebody who understands OPA that can help us with that search going forward."

Viola, for his part, is happy to help the community flourish.

"I'm looking forward to the opportunity to work with the very team we have here ... especially during our busy season here," Viola said. "We're getting a lot accomplished, we have a lot of initiatives as far as construction, implementation of software, and there's a lot of good stuff going on and looking forward to achieving it."

Air Show this weekend

By Morgan Pilz
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) The U.S. Navy Blue Angels will headline the 12th annual Ocean City Air Show, which showcases a number of military aircraft performing acrobatic displays over the beach downtown, Saturday and Sunday.

Although the show does not officially begin until Saturday, events kick off Friday with a Jack Daniels Take Off Party at Sunset Grille in West Ocean City, at 7 p.m. It is free to attend and open to the public. It will feature musical entertainment and a chance to meet pilots, jumpers and flight crews.

“Air shows are inherently patriotic as a whole,” said Chris Dirato, director of public relations for the OC Air Show. “This is a rare opportunity for the fans to see a really terrific demonstration.”

The display village lining the Boardwalk from 15th to 20th streets will open at 9 a.m. for guests to visit various information booths and talk to military recruiters about the Blue Angels and other performances.

Weather permitting, the air show will officially start at noon with the Blue Angels taking to the sky at around 3:15 p.m. for a 30- to 40-minute performance.

Spectators can watch as the eight-pilot team, celebrating 65 years as the Air Force’s Ambassadors in Blue, performs precise aerial maneuvers and formation flying.

“You can’t ask for a better backdrop than Ocean City beach and the Boardwalk,” Dirato said. “Seeing an air show at a beach setting is something to behold versus an airport setting. I think it’s a great opportunity for families to congregate and enjoy themselves as a group and also wave the American flag a little bit.

Blue Angels

“It becomes an educational awareness thing for parents and their kids to tell them what it’s like, them what the military planes are doing for us to protect our freedom,” he continued. “Just seeing the skills of these pilots is amazing in itself.”

This year’s show will also feature several military performers.

The show will include two A-10 Warhog Thunderbolts from the 175th Wing of the Maryland Air National Guard. They are scheduled to do flyovers on both show days.

The A-10 Warhog, or Thunderbolt II, is a single-seat, low, straight-wing aircraft. The design of the wing allows short takeoffs and landings from primitive airfields. Because of this, the A-10 can operate nearly anywhere and provide ground troops with close air support.

There will also be an appearance by the C-5M Super Galaxy from the 436th Airlift Wing based at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware. The C-5M will fly on Saturday only.

The C-5M Super Galaxy is the largest transport aircraft in the U.S. military and one of the largest in the world. The C-5M is a modernized version of the legacy C-5 and is operated by the U.S. Air Force. There are 52 C-5Ms in the fleet that are stationed at Dover Air Force Base, Delaware; Travis AFB, California; Lackland AFB, Texas, and Westover Air Re-

Several military planes will perform during event in OC

 nserve Base, Massachusetts.

The U.S. Coast Guard out of Atlantic City, New Jersey, will also perform a search and rescue demonstration, which will spotlight how the Coast Guard performs an out-the-door water rescue of a person in distress from an HH-65 Daphne helicopter hovering overhead.

The U.S. Air Force F-16 Viper Demo Team will also be performing. The team's F-16CM Fighting Falcon, known as the "Viper," is a single-seat, multi-role fighter with the ability to switch between an air-to-ground and an air-to-air role at the touch of a button.

The F-16 Viper Demo Team recently announced a new commander/demo pilot – Major Garret "Toro" Schmitz. From Price, Utah, Schmitz is a combat proven fighter pilot with over 340 combat hours in the F-16.

In addition, the Panchito B-25 Bomber Flight will perform this year. Last year, the plane was unable to perform because of technical difficulties.

The Air Show continues Sunday at noon with more performances by the Blue Angels, Super Galaxy, Coast Guard and F-35 Joint Strike Fighter, among others.

Depending on the weather, hundreds of thousands of people watch the Ocean City Air Show from the Boardwalk, hotels, on the beach or on a boat in the ocean and bay each year.

"The OC Air Show keeps getting bigger and better thanks to the support of the Town of Ocean City and the hundreds of thousands of spectators who come out to make it a success, some from as far away as New York, Ohio and the Carolinas," Bryan Lilley, president of the OC Air Show stated in a press release.

Tickets for VIP Skybox on Saturday are sold out, but as of earlier this week special packages were still available for the Air Show. They do sell out every year.

Tickets start at $22 for "Drop Zone" seating, and $169 for both Saturday and Sunday for a Flight Line Clubhouse ticket. There are also tickets available in the VIP Skybox and Penthouse areas on Sunday.

(June 13, 2019) Moviegoers should grab a blanket and get ready to watch several films under the stars this summer in Berlin.

"We, actually this year, we're trying something a little bit new," Robin Tomaselli, vice president of Berlin's Arts and Entertainment Committee, said.

'Yellow Submarine' first movie

Tomaselli said the free movies, which will run from 8:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. on June 15 and July 20. would have a "concert music theme."

The first movie of the summer will be "Yellow Submarine" at 8:30 p.m. this Saturday on Artisans Green in downtown Berlin.

"Who doesn't love The Beatles?" said Heather Layton, president of Berlin's Arts and Entertainment Committee.

Layton emphasized the importance of maintaining a family atmosphere, and said the 1968 animated feature does just that.

Attendees are encouraged to bring chairs, blankets and snacks to the outdoor movie.

"...In the past we've had people ... 'grab to go' from one of the restaurants in town and totally have a family dinner or date night," Layton said.

The Berlin Arts and Entertainment Committee has held the outdoor events for the past several years. Organizers said attendance has been between 40-100 people.

The film for July's event on July 20 has not been named, but Layton and Tomaselli agree they'd like to continue the music trend by showing footage of Woodstock to celebrate the festival's 50th anniversary.

However, Layton said the summer series of events would culminate in the showing of "Runaway Bride" on Aug. 24 at the intersection of Jefferson and Main streets.

"It's just so cool to sit on the streets that it was filmed on and ... you can point out the landmarks as you're sitting there watching it, and I just think that's super fun," Layton said.

Set in the fictional town of Hale, Maryland, the film was shot in Berlin in 1998.

Additionally, Layton said she's planning something special in honor of the film's 20th anniversary.

"What I'm picturing is participants going and scouring all the local thrift shops for old wedding dresses and bridesmaids gowns," Layton said. "... [Then], tentatively meeting up at the hotel, parading to Stephen Decatur Park [and] racing [around the park] in the wedding outfits..."

She added the top three winners would receive prizes in the following categories: men, women and children, and best costume.

"We're still working out all the details," she said.

Visit the organization's Facebook page, "Berlin MD Arts & Entertainment," or check out the website, artsinberlin.org, for more information.

Boudel featured for Second Friday

By Rachel Ravina
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) Berlin residents and visitors can support a local business and take a cultural journey at the same time during this Friday's Second Friday Art Stroll.

Bishal Boudel, owner of Himalaya Mantra, said the shop's mission is to showcase items from Nepal that give back to the community a world away. "We are focusing towards fair trade goods, women empowerment, and eco-friendly products," Boudel said on his website.

Boudel, of West Ocean City, said Himalaya Mantra started as an online marketplace, but then Zenna Wellness owner Chrissy Ehrhart contacted him and said the items would pair well with her business's overall aesthetic.

He said he's been selling his Nepalese products inside Zenna Wellness Yoga Studio on Main Street since last September. Boudel said his items are available for purchase from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and through Sunday. As part of Berlin's Second Friday, Himalaya Mantra will stay open from 5-8 p.m.

Boudel said shoppers could purchase such as authentic clothing, backpacks, jewelry and flags.

"All this stuff [comes from the country] of Mount Everest, [and] everything is handmade," Boudel said.

For more information about the store, visit the "Himalaya Mantra" Facebook page at facebook.com/himalayamantra/, or check out the company's website at himalaya-mantra.com.

Additionally, Berlin's Arts and Entertainment Committee President Heather Layton said Friday's event will include some exciting additions.

Makers Market on Jefferson and Commerce streets will accompany the Main Street extravaganza, but Layton said Snow Hill artist Olga Deshields is expected to create a chalk mural on Broad Street with help from community members.

She added the artist would do this exercise as part of "a temporary art installation," which is funded through a Maryland State Arts Council grant.

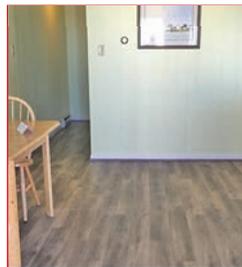

The 30th annual Bathtub Races will also take place Friday evening from 5-8 p.m. in downtown Berlin.

Trio to march in Berlin Bathtub Races parade

By Rachel Ravina
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) Three familiar faces will stroll down Main Street donning shower caps and bathrobes during the 30th annual Berlin Bathtub Races this Friday.

Volunteers Bill Hoshal, Kenny Tomaselli and Mike Wiley are preparing for the upcoming event, but Wiley said it was originally just for fun.

“So it was supposed to be just a dare for one year, but that was 10 years ago,” Wiley said.

Wiley said at a business after hours roughly a decade ago, terrycloth bathrobes were raffled off. Wiley added Hoshal won a robe during that event. Wiley said he was able to get one for himself, and Tomaselli was also able to get ahold of one.

He added they had the bathrobes embroidered to feature “huge rubber ducks,” and they also obtained shower caps and soap on a rope to complete the look.

“It’s a lot of fun and we really enjoy it,” Wiley said.

While the trio has no official name, he said “we’ve been called the three stooges.”

Wiley said he has plans to continue the tradition wearing the famous bathrobe and shower cap.

“As a matter of fact I obtained some new shower caps recently,” Wiley said.

However, Wiley said the joy that he brings others is what he loves most about the event. He added he’s become somewhat of a known figure during the race.

“I’ve had a child ask me for my autograph,” Wiley said. “The only time I’ve ever been asked for my autograph.”

The men also wear many shower caps during the Berlin Bathtub Races, and often lend a helping hand with security or running errands.

Wiley added he sometimes needs to step because “there’s always the people that have to sit on the other side of [the hay barrels] or dangle their legs.”

The event takes place from 5-8 p.m. in downtown Berlin. Following the parade, the drivers and pushers will race their bathtubs.

In addition to the parade, Wiley said Former Worcester County State’s Attorney Joel Todd would also play the bagpipes.

When asked how the Berlin Bathtub Races benefits the overall fabric of the town, his answer was simple.

Jesse Turner, former owner of the Berlin Shoebox, started the race in 1989 as a rivalry between town businesses.

Larnet St. Amant, executive director of the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, agreed, and said she’s looking forward to Friday’s festivities.

While the participation is capped at 30 people – 15 drivers and 15 pushers, St. Amant said she expects the spectator turnout to be well attended.

“[We’re] hoping for record breaking crowds,” St. Amant said.

Berlin’s Chamber of Commerce requires competitors adhere to the following parameters when assembling the bathtub vehicles:

- The driver and rider must be 16 years of age or older.
- The wheels can’t be larger than 26 inches.
- Bathtub must have brakes and steering.
- There must be at least one rider in the bathtub, and they’re required to wear a helmet.

• No more than one person can push, and closed toe shoes are required.

• The bathtub must hold a minimum of two gallons of water.

• The tub must be under control of a pusher at all times, and may not be released until tub has come to a complete stop.

• Crossing the yellow line during the races will result in disqualification of that heat.

Additionally, there is no limit to the number of wheels on a bathtub, and businesses are permitted to advertise

Project SEARCH celebrates first graduates

By Morgan Pilz
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) The Project SEARCH program was established at Atlantic General Hospital in Berlin last summer so students with disabilities could receive job experience while completing high school courses, and now those students are graduating.

Four students – Deshawn Collick, Bradley Dornes, Toni Dixon and Tyler Howard – graduated from the inaugural Project SEARCH class on Wednesday, June 5 at Atlantic General Hospital.

“Everything we do here is taking care of somebody, and it all ends up taking care of the people in our community who are sick and need our help at the end point,” CEO and President Michael Franklin said. “But in between we take care of each other and make sure we all have what we need.

“And we have four students who were with us this past year who spent time learning how to interact with each other and learning how to interact in a way that’s helpful to each other and being part of a team,” he continued. “That’s really been a big blessing for Atlantic General Hospital, because it helped our team also to understand that we’re more than just taking care of sick people. We’re here for the community. And this is a great way of us giving back to the community.”

Project SEARCH is a high school transition program, with more than 500 locations in the U.S. and 10 countries. Its objective is to secure competitive employment for individuals with developmental disabilities. Worcester is the first county on the Eastern Shore to adopt this program.

The SEARCH Program is a partnership between Atlantic General Hospital, the Worcester County Board of Education, Worcester County Developmental Center and the Maryland Department of Education’s Division of Rehabilitation Services.

During the graduation ceremony, Superintendent of Schools Lou Taylor congratulated the students for their hard work and how well they represented themselves and their communities.

“What I tell our educational leaders [is] you need ask three questions of kids when they go out into the public,” Taylor said. “Ask them how well they represent themselves, how well they represent their families and how well they represent Worcester County public schools. And if you get positive answers of those three things, we’ve done our job.

“Today those four [interns] had done those three things,” he continued. “They’ve represented themselves well. They’ve certainly represented their families well by just being who they are, and they’ve represented our school system extremely well. So I am grateful to each of them for how they’ve carried themselves moving through this program.”

The interns performed several tasks, including sterilizing equipment and patient rooms, escorting patients to surgery, organizing paperwork and labeling medical supplies.

In September, the first class of Project SEARCH interns began their year of on-the-job training at the hospital.

The interns spent six hours a day there, rotating through three different work experiences during the school year. Onsite classroom training focused on employability and life skills provided by a county schoolteacher.

Transition Coordinator Matthew Elburn has noticed the immediate changes in several of his students and is proud of their growth.

“Every single one of them just grew immensely from the beginning of the year,” Elburn said. “[Tyler] is texting. He’s going into another department to talk to the staff. And he didn’t talk before. Deshawn ... he’s had a very good year. A great learning year. He’s always been a good worker. He gets along with others and he can follow directions.”

One intern, Toni Dixon, accepted a full-time job offer at Atlantic General Hospital.

“Atlantic General Hospital is paying for her Wor-Wic CNA (certified nursing assistant) classes,” Elburn said. “They already hired her. She’s working with patients who are staying overnight and might need something.”

Outages scheduled in Berlin for essential maintenance

(June 13, 2019) Berlin Electric has scheduled two town-wide outages on Wednesday, June 19 and Thursday, June 20, both at 12:30 a.m. to make repairs to essential equipment.

“The outages will last approximately two to three hours each,” said Town Administrator Laura Allen. “Both outages are weather permitting, so if it rains we’ll reschedule them.”

The outages were timed to minimize the impact on residential and commercial customers, as well as limit the need for overtime, she added.

“We’re making this announcement early to give our electric customers time to plan,” Allen said. “We expect to have service back up before everyone heads to work, but our customers should make sure they have a non-electric alarm clock to get them up those mornings.”

Survey reports 2.1 million visited Assateague last year

(June 13, 2019) A new National Park Service report shows that 2,136,889 visitors to Assateague Island National Seashore in 2018 spent $94,476,000 in communities near the park.

That spending supported 1,192 jobs in the local area and had a cumulative benefit to the local economy of $105,594,000.

“Assateague Island National Seashore welcomes visitors from across the country and around the world,” said Superintendent Debbie Darden. “We are delighted to share the story of this place and the experiences it provides.

“We also feature the park as a way to introduce our visitors to this part of the country and all that it offers,” she continued. “National park tourism is a significant driver in the national economy, returning $10 for every $1 invested in the National Park Service, and it’s a big factor in our local economy as well. We appreciate the partnership and support of our neighbors and are glad to be able to give back by helping to sustain local communities.”

Realtors meet with officials in Washington

(June 13, 2019) During the National Association of Realtors Annual Legislative Meetings & Trade Expo in Washington, D.C., Realtors from across the country, including members from the Coastal Association of Realtors, traveled to Capitol Hill to meet with their federal elected officials.

The purpose of the visits is to share with elected officials NAR's legislative priorities, which this year include reauthorization of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), an investment deadline extension for Qualified Opportunity Zones, and passage of The Equality Act to support fair housing.

Since authority for the NFIP to write insurance was set to expire on May 31, NAR members advocated for reauthorization of the program to avoid a lapse.

Flood insurance is required for a federally-related mortgage in more than 20,000 communities across the country.

According to NAR research, 40,000 property sales are delayed or cancelled each month of a program lapse. Realtors support extending the NFIP as Congress continues its bipartisan work toward responsible long-term reauthorization that includes meaningful reforms to strengthen program solvency.

The House voted to extend the NFIP through September, but the measure has not yet been approved by the Senate.

The Qualified Opportunity Zone (QOZ) program has great potential to spur real estate development and investment, creating additional economic opportunities in these designated communities.

Investors are eager to participate, but delays in the process to finalize QOZ rules have stalled the program's momentum.

Members advocated for the U.S. Treasury and the Internal Revenue Service to quickly finalize rulemaking, or Congress should act to extend deadlines for certain tax benefits created through Opportunity Zones to ensure the program's success.

Fair housing laws improve opportunities to employment, education, and healthy communities, and NAR is proud of its commitment to equal housing policies.

Ten years ago, NAR amended its Code of Ethics to require that Realtors provide equal professional service to the LGBTQ population.

Members advocated for H.R. 5, The Equality Act, which amends the nation's civil rights laws to ensure the American Dream is available and accessible to all Americans. H.R. 5 was passed by the House on May 17 and awaits a vote in the Senate.

"We always appreciate our elected

Report shows park generates over $40 billion for economy

 ing analysis was conducted by economists Catherine Cullinane Thomas and Egan Cornachione of the U.S. Geological Survey and Lynne Koontz of the National Park Service.

The report shows $20.2 billion of direct spending by more than 318 million park visitors in communities within 60 miles of a national park. This spending supported 329,000 jobs nationally; 268,000 of those jobs are found in these gateway communities.

The cumulative benefit to the U.S. economy was $40.1 billion.

Lodging expenses account for the largest share of visitor spending, about $6.8 billion in 2018. Food expenses are the second largest spending area and visitors spent $4 billion in restaurants and bars and another $1.4 billion at grocery and convenience stores.

Visitor spending on lodging supported more than 58,000 jobs and more than 61,000 jobs in restaurants. Visitor spending in the recreation industries supported more than 28,000 jobs and spending in retail supported more than 20,000 jobs.

Report authors also produce an interactive tool that enables users to explore visitor spending, jobs, labor income, value added, and output effects by sector for national, state, and local economies. Users can also view year-by-year trend data.

The interactive tool and report are available at the NPS Social Science Program webpage: www.nps.gov/subjects/socialscience/vse.htm.

Audit report should be read by Pines voters

The Gross Mendelsohn accounting firm's report of its forensic audit of Ocean Pines' food and beverage operation and the public works department should be required reading for all property owners who plan to vote in this summer's election.

In addition to the report's compilation of numbers and its explanations of how the Beach Club and Yacht Club became big drains on the budget, its underlying theme is that the results aren't good when a board distracted by competing agendas is coupled with a freewheeling administration that's not held to account.

That's the only explanation for that board majority's willingness in 2017/18 to buy into illogical budgeting and pie-in-the-sky revenue projections that only compounded the problems that members wanted desperately to fix.

The lack of accountability to the board and more oversight of management by the board were, Gross Mendelsohn found, the root of the problem.

Much of that, however, has been dealt with, and the current board (including members who resigned earlier this year for personal reasons) has stayed on track by agreeing to disagree at times without the level of conflict that bedeviled some of its predecessors.

When members of the board are suspicious of each other, or refuse to compromise in the pursuit of their own agendas, the odds of getting anything done of consequence are diminished.

As Interim General Manager John Viola observed when he agreed to stay on another six months, the current administration — aided by the board — has accomplished a great deal.

That's what voters should consider as they assess the various candidacies in this year's elections. There's no good reason, at this juncture, to change directions or to "shake things up." What the board needs in its three new members are thoughtful, independent people, who aren't afraid to speak up, but also willing to accept that no one is right all the time.

Issue of elder abuse recognized in Wor.

Social Services dept. receive proclamation from commissioners

By Rachel Ravina
Staff Writer

(June 13, 2019) The work being done to protect Worcester County's vulnerable adults was recognized by the Worcester County Commissioners meeting last Tuesday.

"It's important to educate the community on elder abuse because it is so under-reported," Roberta Baldwin, director of Worcester County's Department of Social Services, told the commissioners.

In issuing a proclamation recognizing the efforts to address the problem, Commissioners' President Diana Purnell said, "This ... touches all of us, whether it has happened to someone in your family, or someone like me [who] has hit that elderly category, and it could affect me."

The proclamation declared June 2019 as Elder Abuse Awareness Month and June 15 as Elder Abuse Awareness Day in Worcester County.

"It feels very good to know that our county commissioners and our decision-makers in our community support the work that's being done to keep seniors safe and able to remain living in their own homes," Baldwin said.

However, Baldwin added that it does take a village to protect and provide services for the many vulnerable adults in the county.

She added her department also works with the county's health department and commission on aging for this venture.

"It allows seniors and our vulnerable adults to make one phone call to ask for assistance," Baldwin said.

Baldwin added the agencies offer services for adults that include personal care, housekeeping, meal preparation, medication monitoring, and helping to ensure patients make their doctors' appointments.

Jamie Manning, assistant director of services for the Department of Social Services, expressed her gratitude for the teamwork as she accepted the proclamation last week.

"We're very fortunate in Worcester County to have Maryland access point," Manning said last week. "You know it's a multi-agency program, a one-stop shop for adults, and without that partnership with the three agencies, we couldn't do this alone so we really thank you for all your support."

Baldwin said vulnerable adults can become victims of physical or sexual abuse, neglect or financial exploitation.

The National Commission on Aging has found that about one in 10 Americans over the age of 60 years old have "experienced some form of elder abuse," Baldwin said, adding that about 150 cases of elder abuse are reported annually.

"And that for me is a very low number and that's because I think it does go under reported," Baldwin said.

She said the victims could be afraid that speaking out could result in them having to leave their homes, or they could lose the assistance they're receiving if the person responsible for the abuse is administering care.

June slated as Elder Abuse Awareness Month in county

“A lot of people sweep elder abuse under the rug and one in six people will be touched by that at some point — an adult will experience elder abuse, neglect or financial exploitation,” Manning said last.

Manning and Baldwin agreed education is paramount in preventing the problem.

“The more that we can make the [public] aware that these types of crimes exist, the more likely we are to protect our seniors from becoming victims of such crimes,” Baldwin said.

Baldwin added it’s important to look for the signs and symptoms of elder abuse.

For instance, with physical abuse,

Baldwin said it’s important to take note of unexplained bruises or bed sores for those bed-bound seniors.

If it’s a financial situation, Baldwin said persons being added to bank accounts is a red flag, as is unusual financial activity or unpaid bills. Baldwin also said the perpetrator is often someone the victim knows.

“So our job, really, is to work with the senior and the non-offending members of the family to put services in place to help that senior reside in their homes but to be safe and well cared for,” Baldwin said.

However, it may seem simple, but Manning said taking action is key.

“If you see something, say something,” Manning said.

Updating of Hazard Mitigation Plan

To include unincorporated areas of Worcester County

(June 13, 2019) Worcester County Emergency Services is currently updating the Hazard Mitigation Plan.

Mitigation plans identify potential hazards and vulnerabilities, set goals and establish specific mitigation actions to reduce risk of hazards to people, buildings, infrastructure and the environment.

Local mitigation plans are required under Section 322 of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Stafford Act), as enacted under the Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000 in order to be eligible for federal hazard mitigation grants.

The Worcester County Hazard Mitigation Plan was originally adopted in 2006 and then again in 2014. Comprehensive updates are required by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The 2019 plan update is multi-jurisdictional in scope. The plan update will include unincorporated areas of Worcester County and the towns of Berlin, City of Pocomoke and Snow Hill.

The first step in the planning process involves the identification of key stakeholders to serve on the planning committee.

Forty-eight people from various agencies, departments, organizations and municipalities joined Worcester County Emergency Services at the plan development kick-off meeting on May 22 at the Berlin Branch of the Worcester County Library.

The plan will be developed over the summer months. Additional information developed over the course of the planning process will be posted on the county website at www.co.worcester.md.us/departments/emergency.

For more information on the plan development process and how to participate, call WCES Planner Christina Vickers at 410-632-1315.

Stephen Decatur student will travel to Va. for program

The 16-year-old who attends Stephen Decatur High School is "very grateful for this opportunity."

"As an alumna of Envision myself, I am excited for Carson Shanholtz to meet, work, and collaborate with other high-aspiring students from across the country and the globe," said Amanda Freitag Thomas, SVP for Envision. "Hands down, my favorite part of attending an Envision program was being with motivated students in an environment designed to help us challenge our assumptions, meet new people, and grow."

"Creating that same learning environment is a central focus for all of our programs," she continued. "At Game and Technology Academy, students build the confidence and skills needed to excel at college and in the workplace. They learn how to adapt to and communicate in new situations, to new challenges, and with new people, which, given how rapidly the world is changing due to technology and innovation, are essential skills for success."

Since 1985, Envision programs have served more than 800,000 students in more than 145 countries, with programs designed to help students develop the leadership, scholarship and career skills needed to succeed in today's competitive college and career landscape.

Retired Nurses of Ocean Pines have provided over $10K to AGH since 2008

(June 13, 2019) The Retired Nurses of Ocean Pines recently presented a check for $850 to Colleen Wareing, vice president of patient care services at Atlantic General Hospital, benefiting the James G. and Nancy W. Barrett Nursing Scholarship Program.

The Retired Nurses of Ocean Pines have contributed more than $10,000 to Atlantic General Hospital's nursing scholarship program since 2008.

For the last 15 years, the Barrett Nursing Scholarship Program has enabled two to four non-nurses to work toward their nursing degrees each year, with full reimbursement of tuition and books.

In 2016, Atlantic General expanded the program to offer three current nurses financial assistance to return to school to become bachelor prepared.

This supports the organization's efforts to have 80 percent of their registered nursing staff bachelor's prepared by 2020.

Chef uses fresh tuna catch for poke bowl

What a day it was. The sun was shining, the ocean majestic and the inlet maybe a tiny bit snotty as we made our way offshore, but I have definitely been in much worse. It was a perfect day, but none of us knew just how perfect it was going to be.

By Paul Suplee,
MBA, CEC, PC-3

Having been invited by a buddy of mine to fish on the Lucky Duck II out of Sunset Marina on Friday, I quickly changed plans, as I had initially signed up to golf in a charity event for the college. With the tournament fee already paid (by me), it was easy for the three guys left to rebuild the foursome and hit the links without me.

After a very comfortable ride out, we made a quick day of fishing with lines in the water around 6:30 or so. By 11:30 we were packing everything and heading back in with both fish boxes filled to the brim and an iced-down body bag holding another four hundred pounds of tuna. It is safe to say that I have never been part of anything so crazy on a boat in my life.

Those of you who do fish offshore know all too well the rush that you get when a reel explodes. When the first of two bigeye tuna wolfpacks smashed our spread, we had eight reels making that high-pitched scream as hundreds of yards of line went straight down to the bottom of the canyon.

Once in the dock, it was time to celebrate and let the master fish cleaners do their job. And now we are making sure not to waste an ounce of that fresh meat. Whether it went to friends, family or wherever, we made sure to use it.

As I broke down the tuna at my house, I carefully cut steaks and vacuum packed them. I then cubed up the leftovers and made a simple marinade of red wine vinaigrette and some Hawaiian BBQ sauce. Now, I will tell you that it is worth hunting down a chef who can buy this sauce from a seafood broker. That is the only place that I know where to buy this particular brand, and it is very expensive, but believe me when I say that a little goes a long way. So, if you do have the connection in the restaurant world, it is called Taste of Island Legends Hawaiian Barbeque Sauce. And believe me, it is well worth the hunt.

As I write this, I am on day three of my tuna binge, and I have cut back dramatically. Since I have a commercial vacuum chamber, I can seal it like the pros and it will last a very long time, so there's no need to greatly increase my mercury levels at the moment, thank you.

If you haven't had fresh fish, as in fish the day it was caught, suffice it to say that you need to make it a priority (notwithstanding seafood allergies or deep-loathing of seafood). There is nothing more succulent than a freshly caught fish, or head-on fresh shrimp as compared to the frozen bricks we get in restaurants most of the time. There is a beauty in its freshness.

To top it all off, when I cooked my kids lunch, two of them specifically asked for poke bowls. Maybe they wanted to reminisce our trips to the islands; who knows? Either way, I was thrilled to hear the battle cry, and I'm pretty sure that I delivered. There wasn't a scrap left on either plate.

With the tuna bite surging, I need to get out again. This time, though, I'll cook on the boat. That will make for one hell of a ride home.

Tuna Poke Bowl

serves 4

1# fresh tuna (Find a fishin' buddy)

1/2c. Legends Hawaiian BBQ Sauce (Find a chef buddy)

4 servings sushi rice (recipe follows)

2 c. Seaweed salad

1/4c. Pickled ginger

Black sesame seeds, as needed

Scallions, as needed

Clean the tuna of all blood line and cartilage, ensuring that it is the straight, tender loin that you are using

Toss the tuna in the BBQ sauce and place on a warm-to-room temperature pile of sushi rice

Garnish with remaining ingredients

So simple, yet so elegant, kind of like me.

Sushi Rice

makes 4 heaping portions

3 c. Sushi rice

2 c. water

1 c. rice wine vinegar, seasoned

1/2c. Granulated sugar

1 tsp. Kosher salt

Place the rice in a strainer and rinse with cold water until the water starts to run clear, or at clearer

Combine all of the ingredients in a lidded sauce pan and bring to a boil

Turn down immediately to a simmer and steam for 20-25 minutes (refer to manufacturer's instructions for the nitty gritty)

Remove from the heat when done, uncovered, and tip the pan into a large bowl in which you can spread the rice

Fan the rice and gently toss it. This will help to develop its glutinous (no, this has nothing to do with gluten, the protein) characteristic

Once at the point you are satisfied with, simply cover and keep on the counter

Most of the poke bowls you buy in Hawaii are room temperature to warm rice, but never hot. Think of it as a big, unwrapped sushi roll. Only better
