Viola returns for two more years as GM

Being asked to come back major factor in his decision

By Jack Chavez
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) John Viola isn't going anywhere.

On July 1, the Ocean Pines Association announced that they had agreed on a two-year contract with its general manager that includes an option for a third year.

John Viola

In a press release issued that day, OPA President Colette Horn said the association interviewed other "very qualified candidates" while maintaining a line of communication with Viola. Ultimately the board of directors allowed Horn to negotiate the extension with Viola.

One of the reasons Viola decided to come back, he said, was simply being wanted back.

"Throughout my four years, I've never turned down a constructive board majority. Six of seven (directors) came to me as well as five of the six (director) candidates told me they wanted me to stay on, as well as many others (in the community)."

Viola said there is plenty of work to be done in the second half of 2022. His goals, he said, are to continue improving drainage around the community, putting the amenities in a balanced position, the bulkhead projects and replacing mailboxes around the community, which is slated to begin next week.

Earlier this week, Horn praised the work Viola has done in Ocean Pines thus far.

"He's certainly proven his ability to be a successful leader," she said. Financially, developing his staff, working with the board. He's result-oriented and he's shown that.

Electronic voting safety assured

Election committee wants to reassure voters their privacy will be protected

By Jack Chavez

(July 7, 2022) One of the priorities for the Ocean Pines Elections Committee ahead of the board of directors election in August is to ensure voter privacy and to allay any concerns about the security of electronic voting.

Those goals were front and center during the committee's latest meeting on Friday.

The committee pored over the voting directions, which include a paper ballot and instructions to vote online, to be sent to voting-eligible Ocean Pines Association members next week. In particular, the committee wanted to make sure the information is clear and that there would be no confusion over how far the committee will be removed from the online voting process.

The OPA board voted on June 27 to allow electronic voting for annual elections and referendums.

Neighbors and Friends,

Ocean Pines is home. Since arriving here more than 30 years ago, Susan and I reared our three children who attended and graduated from our local public schools. We enjoyed attending countless school plays, seasonal children's concerts and sporting events. Susan taught Sunday School for 18 years and was a volunteer softball and soccer coach with Ocean Pines Parks and Recreation for many years. We started a business and have been active in local organizations. This is our community.

I am running for reelection to continue representing our Ocean Pines district and to serve the entire county as I have during the past eight years with a conservative approach to county government.

During my time in office, I believe I have demonstrated a responsive, accessible, responsible and effective approach to public service; valuing community involvement and taking a conservative perspective on taxpayer funded allocations.

I seek your support for another term to: continue advocating for the best interests of Ocean Pines and the county as a whole; to continue advocating for a limited county government role in the lives of county citizens; and, to work through important community issues including ensuring the proposed sports complex is not a taxpayer-funded burden, shepherding the county-wide broadband initiative, managing the impact of the Blueprint for Maryland education mandates and developing a stable funding formula for Fire/EMT operations.

There is a prevailing belief that taxpayer money is an unlimited funding source for projects and initiatives that I believe fall outside taxpayer responsibility and expectation. As a consistent fiscal conservative and small business owner, I believe government must demonstrate a need for each taxpayer dollar spent. The County treasury is not an ATM! And I have voted accordingly.

Unfunded state legislature mandates and funding formulas unfairly siphon from the wallets of county taxpayers millions of dollars annually. Worcester is often victimized by Annapolis state lawmakers and activists who sidestep personal accountability, espouse dependency over self-reliance and who celebrate, promulgate and legislate wrong-headed ideas that threaten Worcester County values and local control. I have and will continue to oppose these efforts!

Whether it's hosting town meetings, responding to constituent concerns, speaking before different organizations, testifying in Annapolis or asking tough questions during Commissioners' meetings, I take seriously the trust and confidence placed in me by our community and I'd like to continue that work.

It has been a pleasure and privilege to serve on your behalf. On Tuesday, July 19, I ask for your vote in the Republican Primary Election. Early voting will take place at Worcester Preparatory School at the Field House located at 508 S. Main Street in Berlin between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. July 7 through July 14 (including Saturday and Sunday).

Berlin employee manual gets long overdue modern update

By Jack Chavez
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) The handbook for Town of Berlin employees just got a makeover.

At the June 27 town council meeting, Administrative Manager Kelsey Jensen outlined changes, additions and subtractions.

Kelsey Jensen

The council unanimously approved the updates.

A couple of the more noticeable changes include changing pronouns in the handbook from "he/she" to "they/them," adding great-grandparents to the definition for "immediate family" and updating the harassment policy.

"These are things that have previously been approved," Jensen said to the council. "We added great-grandparents to immediate family because many employees have them and they should be able to follow through with that bereavement if there is a passing."

The harassment policy is probably the "largest change," Jensen said as far as housekeeping goes.

"The harassment policy changes were recommended by (Local Government Insurance Trust)," Jensen said. "They took our policy and made several changes and then sent it back to us. They are our insurance provider (and) who we look at for this type of resource. We did go ahead and implement their policy into this."

Harassment updates includes various rewordings, such as changing the phrase "work atmosphere" to "work environment." Specific language was also added that says that "actions, words, jokes or comments based on an individual's sex, race, color, ancestry or national origin, age, religion, disability, sexual orientation, sexual identification, genetic information, pregnancy, marital status, military service or any other legally protected characteristic will not be tolerated. The handbook also now lists general examples of offenses based on those characteristics such as the displaying of offensive pictures or drawings or "racially or ethnically charged" text messages.

Holidays were also addressed. Employees now get a full off-day on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. Juneteenth, which falls every year on June 19, is now recognized by the town as well.

The sympathy guidelines have been cleared up on 24-hour recovery stays versus outpatient care and minor procedures.

Councilmember Jay Knerr pointed out that some outpatient procedures are indeed major.

"I'm not sure how you guys will want to handle that," Jensen said. "Currently, it's set for the period of a day. I don't know what you consider a day. If someone has something major, we've sent flowers, even if it's not 24 hours."

The cost of flowers to be sent now exclude delivery costs.

"A few years ago, this was approved by the prior town administrator and prior mayor," Jensen said. "It was difficult to order a decent arrangement and any delivery/processing fees for under $100. We cannot always use a local florist depending on where the flowers are being sent."

She added that department heads are responsible for requesting a sympathy card or gift for their staff members.

"They know best about the status of their employees," Jensen added.

The electronic equipment section was updated in light of the prevalence of take-home laptops. The town administration credit limit was updated based on purchasing policy, up to $10,000.

The town will also leave it up to an employee's respective department to request documentation for sick leave, with the department head being the one to direct the employee to submit proper documentation to the HR department.

A section has been removed that instructed that handbooks must be returned upon an employee's termination. Jensen said most people do not return them and she doesn't see why they'd need to.

"Lastly, we indicated where copies of the most up-to-date handbooks would be available and that employees will sign off for updates," Jensen said.

"That's kind of what we changed. This time around we're going to go section by section, if these are approved this evening and just kind of — it's an outdated handbook and it hasn't been truly updated I think since (2015 or 2016)."

Jensen and the council will continue to work on the handbook section by section at the second meeting of every month, when recommendations can be made and discussions had about the handbook.

The Ocean Pines Elections Committee decided against touching anything that could even remotely link it to voter emails for the upcoming board elections, scrapping an email blast regarding online voting procedures. Next week, mailers will be sent out to all eligible voters with both a paper ballot and instructions for voting online.

Committee works to ensure integrity of election process

transmission to help our voters understand that a lot of the issues that come up about integrity of the vote are eliminated by doing it electronically," committee chair Carol Ludwig said after the meeting. "It's a third party. None of us touch anything. The only thing we get our hands on is paper ballots and we have to go through those. That, to me, is not as private or efficient as people voting online."

During the meeting, Ludwig discussed telling the online voting vendor, Vote HOA, to refrain from sending eligible voters access to vote.

"When we send the names of eligible voters to the assessment database, they will assign random numbers for them and send them back. That's what we provide to the printer," Ludwig said. "If they have an email address on the list, they will send them a connection but I think I'm going to tell them not to do that. We need the people to log on and do their thing rather than have them receive an email, though the emails in the assessment database are probably good."

Committee member Mary Anne

Whitcomb responded by raising concern about the wording of the instructions and how it could be misconstrued as insinuating the committee indeed collects email addresses.

"The problem is there's been a lot of stuff on social media that somebody has emails and they're sending them out with these nasty things about the candidates. I don't want to be in a position where I have people's emails," she said.

"(The instructions say) 'If we do not have your email address on file or you do not know your code, you can still vote online. Please contact the Elections Committee or go to the web address below.' It sounds like you can contact the Elections Committee to find out your email on file. That's how it reads. 'Please contact the Elections Committee to get your vote.'"

Relevant election dates this year include:

Cutoff date for voter eligibility - Wednesday, July 6

Ballots mailed - Week of July 12

Ballot Deadline - Wednesday, Aug. 10 by 4 p.m.

Ballots counted and vote totals announced - Thursday, Aug. 11 starting at 10 a.m. in the Clubhouse Meeting Room

Annual Meeting - Saturday, Aug. 13. Time and Venue TBD

Another issue was voter codes being featured on the mailers. It was decided after some discussion between the committee and Thom Gulyas, president of ACE Printing and Mailing who is also a candidate in the Worcester County Commissioners elections, that the codes would go on the top of the instructions page in what Gulyas described as "very big letters" in the meeting.

Committee member Bob Windsor asked if exclusively electronic voting is the goal in the future.

"I'm delighted to see that we were able to negotiate that agreement with him."

The OPA brought on Viola in 2019 in the wake of a forensic audit of the association's ledgers that had left it in dire straits financially. The association's treasurer immediately before his ascension, Viola was originally inked as an interim replacement for former General Manager John Bailey, whom the association ousted amid the monetary mayhem consuming the association.

Under Viola, the OPA's finances rapidly approved, making a continued partnership a sensible move in the eyes of the association's leadership.

No other details on the contract were available at the time of the announcement.

Duplicate ballots always dealt with quickly, efficiently

this exercise," Ludwig replied.

Before exiting the meeting, Gulyas asked about the timing of when the mailers would be sent out and Ludwig said that a decision on whether to go forward with a hybrid annual meeting was holding up the process.

"Through the whole (process) I've held that (online attendees) have to have some type of identification. They log onto Microsoft Teams and request to get in," Ludwig said. "We look up the information they put in there and make them turn their camera on and they have to show a picture ID."

"I made them pay attention to the fact that in person, you have to have a picture ID. So online, they're going to have to do the same thing. I said I'm not going to put the Elections Committee at risk over that."

Later in the meeting, the committee discussed duplicate ballots and Ludwig pointed out that any extra markings on ballots or envelopes will render the ballot invalid.

"If anybody blacks out their section number, we're not accepting that. Because we can't see if it's a duplicate," she said. "Why do we get duplicates from the same address? I don't get it."

"The sad thing is they don't realize that ... if we get a duplicate, we can go through and identify who sent those in. But we never do. We just discard the duplicate."

OPVFD hosts town hall to talk about new South Station

By Jack Chavez
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) The Ocean Pines Volunteer Fire Department held a town hall on June 30 to discuss the upcoming renovations to the South Station.

A panel consisting of OPVFD President David VanGasbeck, OPVFD Chief Steve Grunwald and Gary Campbell, a public safety architect from contractor Manns Woodward Studios, anchored the gathering.

At the beginning of the meeting, Grunwald stressed how vital response time is in an age when homes and appliances in homes are built with materials that can enable fire to spread quickly.

Grunwald said it can take as little as five minutes for a fire to render a space unlivable from the time it is ignited.

“The importance of response is crucial when it comes to fires,” he said.

In designing the firehouse, Campbell outlined several priorities to consider: first-responder health and safety; being sure the facility is recognized as a fire “house,” as in people live there; providing decompression space m for firefighters to unwind

Officials from the Ocean Pines Volunteer Fire Department and architecture firm MW Studios briefed the public during a town hall on June 30 regarding a much-anticipated renovation of the South Station on Ocean Parkway. after battling fires.

He also said the potential for growth must be considered along with establishing clear boundaries between public and private spaces.

Campbell said of the three basic types of firehouses — single-story, two-story and hybrid solutions — each has its unique characteristics and requirements. Ocean Pines is leaning toward a hybrid solution.

“We just do not have the acreage for the footprint they need in a single-story station.”

The existing firehouse sits on a 1.34-acre property with 13 public parking spots, eight responder parking spots and three drive-through apparatus bays that exit directly onto

OPVFD, architect break down revamped South Station plan

Ocean Parkway.

The proposed design calls for new ADA-compliant parking and access at the public entrance, eight public parking spots, five responder parking spots, a new drive-through apparatus bay with a concrete response apron and four drive-through apparatus bays in total.

On the lower level, the department is aiming for six individual bunk rooms and additional room for future overflow, four or five bathrooms, a kitchen and dining area and a couple of administrative offices. All living spaces will be on this level.

The level will also include a decontamination area, which the station does not have. The inclusion of a decontamination area at the South Station would permit gear to be quickly cleaned after calls to hasten first responders' turn-around time.

The upper level will be accessible by stairs and elevator from the secure main entrance and include a training room, conference room, administrative offices and storage.

The exterior of the firehouse will feature a stone-base veneer with a cast-stone sill and cementitious siding panels.

The roof will be a standing seam metal roof. Openings include "high-visibility" bay doors and high-efficiency windows.

In April, after securing $1.35 million in state funding, OPFD officials estimated they'd need approximately $7 million for the project, with the Ocean Pines community footing about half of the bill.

The South Station, which was built in 1981 and totaled 3,200 square feet, had an addition in 1985 that included three apparatus bays and support areas totaling 4,200 square feet.

Lastly, in 1985 an additional 500 square feet was added to the site.

Architectural Review Briefs

By Jack Chavez

Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) The Ocean Pines Architectural Review Committee looked at the following appeals during its July 5 meeting:

Screened unit

The committee denied a request to allow a screened canopy to be used as living space on the deck of the residence at 23 Ivanhoe Court. In making the decision, committee chair John Dilworth told applicant John Fiori the basis for it.

“The only way that we can look at this — the only thing in the guidelines that comes anywhere near this is we have to consider this an alteration or an addition to the existing home (to pass it),” Dilworth said. “If you look at the alteration and existing home, there are specific design requirements that it has to be the same material as the house, same color, constructed in a way that adds and augments existing structure. It has to be permanently attached.”

“So when we looked to see something to hang our hat on here ... what you have up there doesn’t meet any of (those guidelines.) There’s nothing that we can look into using the documents we use so that we can legitimately approve this thing. This is a temporary structure that you bought that can be taken up, put down, built like a tent, looks like a tent, made with material (used for tents). It’s not permanent. You can’t use it as living space. That’s really what it’s coming down to. We have no other option to look to.”

Detached garage

The committee approved an exception to allow a 9-foot driveway for a detached garage at 8 Crossbow Trail. Hurdles that applicants Mark and Marla Taylor needed to clear included a neighbor’s drainage concerns, which Mark Taylor said was ultimately found to be “no issue whatsoever,” and moving a 10 x 10-foot shed to another part of the yard.

Fence

The committee approved a request to install a 4-foot fence off the side property line at 8 Admiral Avenue. Applicant Joseph Crupi described the fence as “L-shaped.” He said the reason he wants the fence off the property line, aside from cosmetics, is the presence of a gas line. “If I put it coming off the house and straight down, that’s going to put the gas line between the fence and the hedges. God forbid something happens, we won’t be able to get at it.”

Deck construction

The committee approved a request to build a deck and handicap ramp that will extend beyond the 35-foot rear building restriction line by about seven feet at 3 Harpoon Road. A representative on behalf of applicant Kyle Colbert said the ramp has since been moved to the right side of the structure. Both the deck and ramp had been previously approved by Worcester County.

'One-stop' maternal health, recovery Berlin campus open

By Jack Chavez
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) Individuals recovering from substance abuse and uninsured mothers-to-be need all the support they can get to get by in this world and later today, the public is invited to the grand opening of a groundbreaking one-stop-shop for some of society's most vulnerable, the H4R Recovery Campus in Berlin.

"It has been 15-hour days and a lot, a lot of work and prayers and loan and support from the board — Hope4Recovery. And we have a ton of community partners," said founder Tish Ottey.

According to a press release, the campus, located at 10226 Old Ocean City Boulevard, will house the Grace Center for Maternal and Women's Health, a nonprofit dedicated to providing services and programs to meet the needs of pregnant and parenting mothers; Worcester Goes Purple, an awareness project to engage the community in promoting healthy choices and preventing substance abuse; Hope4Recovery, the overseeing nonprofit that provides a safe, sober and structured living environment for those in recovery from substance use disorder; and Cove Recovery, an outpatient provider of substance abuse treatment and mental health services on the lower Eastern Shore.

"We felt like we could provide more by bringing in Worcester Goes Purple," Ottey said. "We always wanted to have meetings on our campus. We were lucky enough to get Cove Recovery as another addictions counseling and mental health service. Which is desperately needed every day."

Though there are other recovery resources in the area, Ottey said what's truly remarkable about the campus is the breadth of services available.

"We have a treatment facility on site. Worcester Goes Purple is there and they help with resources, both education and financials. They help with getting birth certificates, social security cards, all the things that people in early recovery may not have but need," Ottey said.

"We have a research center, packets for resources around the area. We tend to have classes in the back space, so (people can learn) life skills (such as) how to prep taxes. We're bringing people in to help with those things."

She added it wouldn't be unusual for families going to the Grace Center to find value in other parts of the campus.

"The Grace Center for Maternal Health is for women who don't have insurance. But commonly, some of their clients come with their baby's father, and sometimes they have a substance use disorder. Sometimes (these things) go hand-in-hand."

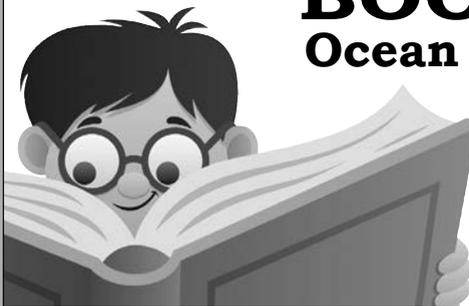

Ottey also stressed that the campus isn't simply for those in early recovery.

"Individuals out in the community attending AA and NA, this whole campus is at their fingertips," she said. "We're not aware of anything around here that is that type of one-stop-shop to get help and resources."

The opening ceremony will feature a ribbon-cutting at 3:30 followed by tours of the facility. Light refreshments will be served.

Correction

An article about the upcoming Worcester County election, published on June 30, 2022, erroneously stated Worcester County Commissioner Josh Nordstrom is a member of the Republican Party — he is not. Nordstrom is a registered Democrat and is not in a primary race.

In addition, the Republican Party does not endorse Nordstrom or anyone in the Democratic Party and Caryn Abbott is not a "fellow Party member." She is the Republican candidate running against Nordstrom.

Berlin Town Council Briefs

(July 7, 2022) The Berlin Town Council discussed the following at its June 27 meeting:

One-Day Liquor License

The council approved a special one-day permit to the Berlin Heritage Foundation and Taylor House Museum for an evening event that will serve alcohol on Aug. 14.

Councilman Jack Orris, who is a member of the foundation's board, said a similar event in early June was "extremely successful." The event, dubbed "Sundays at the Museum" will feature "music and fun at the Calvin B. Taylor House Museum," according to the town's website.

Lift station contract

The council approved a $411,937 contract to TK Construction of Salisbury for upgrading the William Street pump station to meet confined space standards. The project is part of a larger town goal to evaluate and upgrade its water infrastructure.

Mutual aid

The council approved a mutual aid agreement between the Choptank Electric Cooperative and the Town of Berlin that stipulates that entities would help each other should either need assistance during emergency service restoration, such as during or after a hurricane.

SHA briefing

Orris suggested that the council invite a representative from the State Highway Administration to a meeting to answer questions. He said issues he'd like more information on local projects that involve signage, crosswalks and brick inlays in crosswalks

Mayor's report

Orris also suggested that the council bring back the mayor's report to the council.

"It doesn't have to be the magna carta, but just bullet points of happenings in town," Orris said. "People are concerned about crosswalks. I wasn't really aware until they came to me. Saw chatter on Facebook where there was information available that just hadn't gotten to us."

Aggressive driving

Councilwoman Shaneka Nichols suggested that more be done to curb aggressive driving in the community, especially along William Street.

She said she was nearly struck by drivers along the road multiple times before the school year let out while walking local students off the premises of Berlin Intermediate School.

COUPLE HONORED

The Friends of the Ocean Pines Library presented its annual Volunteer of the Year Award to Kay and Lanny Hickman of Ocean Pines. The Hickmans were recognized for their faithful and longstanding volunteer service in catering and decorating for dozens of events at the library over many years. The Hickmans were also presented with a proclamation from Worcester County for their service to the library.

County allows 30 more single-family homes

By Greg Wehner
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) Developers of Triple Crown Estates just south of Ocean Pines were given the thumbs up from Worcester County Commissioners to amend phase two of their plans with less units than originally proposed.

Property owners Steen Associates originally sought to construct 60 buildings on the 92-acre plot of land in two phases – the first phase consisted of 30 single family homes and the second consisted of 30 duplexes.

With the first phase already underway, the developer changed his plans to include 30 single family homes instead of duplexes in the second phase, cutting the number of units in half.

Jennifer Keener, the director of development, review, and permitting, told the commissioners this amendment is proposing to take 60 units, or 30 duplexes, down to 30 units, or 30 single family homes.

“We’re just matching here,” she said. “Same density as before. Just an expansion of the land area.”

Zoning Administrator Kristen Tremblay said the development is located on 92 acres just north of Gum Point Road, South of Ocean Pines, and East of Racetrack Road. It is zoned R1, or rural residential, and RP, resource protection, as 90 acres are comprised of uplands, 1.25 acres are non-tidal

GREG WEHNER/BAYSIDE GAZETTE

The developers of Triple Crown Estates, which is located and will be connected to the south of Ocean Pines, were granted the ability to change their initial plan of constructing 30 duplexes in phase 2 of the project, and instead will construct 30 single-family homes.

wetlands, and 0.2 acres are private tidal wetlands.

The property currently has approval for phase one, Tremblay said, and of the original 30 homes, several single-family building permits have been applied for. But they are all waiting on County Roads to approve roads that have been cleared, along with base and stabilization to be completed before issuing the permits.

Phase two was anticipated when Phase one was approved.

The development will include 47 acres of open space of which 32 acres will be natural and open, 3.5 set aside for active recreation, and 11 for passive recreation.

There is also one point of access, which is an extension of King Richard Road in Ocean Pines.

On May 5, the County Planning Commission found the area is recommended by the comprehensive plan to include cluster or planned forms of development with a density of 1 unit per acre. The proposal presented for Triple Crown Estates has a density of 0.66 per acre, complying with the comprehensive plan recommendation.

The Planning Commission also found the project will not have an adverse impact on local traffic and transportation patterns, Tremblay continued, will be provided with public water and sewage, and incorporates measures to improve water quality in sensitive tidal and nontidal areas.

Laura Parker, who lives near the development, questioned how adding 30 homes will not impact traffic and rain runoff, finding it unbelievable

The traffic in front of her house along Gum Point Road, she said, has increased three times over the last 10 years and drive by at ridiculous speeds.

As for rain runoff, Parker added, she was concerned that the runoff will already hurt the “already sick” Turville Creek.

Dennis Parker raised similar concerns.

“They’re saying there’s no impact?” he asked. “Invite the lawyer to sit there and try to make a left off of Gum Point Road.”

Commissioner Joe Mitrecic acknowledged there were traffic issues in the area, as did Commissioner Chip Bertino.

The latter told the Parkers that he agreed 589 was dangerous and backs up. For the last eight years, Bertino said, the county has tried to get the state to widen the road, but nothing has been done and funding has not been made available.

Based on the findings presented by Tremblay, the Planning Commission recommended the applicant’s request, but with two stipulations. The first was that if a utility easement being used by construction vehicles along Route 589 is proposed as an emergency access to the development, approval be obtained by the State Highway Administration.

The second stipulation was that fencing, and a gate be added along the accessible areas on Route 589, or Racetrack Road.

The commissioners closed the hearing and when put to a vote, Bertino motioned its approval based on the findings of fact. The final vote was 5-0 with Commissioners Diana Purnell and Bud Church absent.

Mailbox replacement in OP set to commence next week

(July 7, 2022) Replacement of some mailboxes and pedestals in Ocean Pines should start by the second week of July.

Public Works Director Eddie Wells said new mailboxes and pedestals have arrived, and staff met with the postmaster to discuss a replacement plan.

Ocean Pines Association General Manager John Viola made mailbox clusters and pedestals a key part of his beautification plan, tapping Senior Executive Office Manager Linda Martin to lead the effort.

Martin and staff evaluated all the mailbox sites and determined several high priority locations for replacement. The association also worked with a contractor to have all the mailboxes in Ocean Pines cleaned.

“The team is working on this as an important initiative and we are pleased with the progress so far,” Viola said. “There were a lot of moving parts associated with this project, but we are moving forward and addressing this, starting with the replacement of high-priority locations in early July.”

Mailbox replacement has been in Ocean Pines Association General Manager John Viola's crosshairs for a long time.

During the late spring and early summer, horseshoe crabs spawn on the coastlines along Asateague Island and other bay areas. The spawning season is important not only for the species survival but the survival of dozens of other species that depend on the eggs as a vital food source.

MCBP completes horseshoe crab survey in coastal bays

By Jack Chavez
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) They're large, sturdy-looking, spiky and in an ominous shade of brownish-green, but a beachgoer would just as soon be injured in an attack by a rogue beachball than any encounter one might have with a horseshoe crab.

Around the coastal bays region, protecting them is a top priority for environmental organizations such as the Maryland Coastal Bays Program, which just completed a survey in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources of these brackish-water arthropods during their spawning season.

"We go out to different sites at Asateague and Skimmer islands and we walk along hundred-meter transects," said Carly Toulan, an environmental scientist with MCBP. "Along them, we go one meter into the water from the high-tide line and count each horseshoe crab by sex. We do that until we reach the end of the 100-meter transect."

Toulan added that the survey typically entails two volunteers counting and will use the average if there is a slight disparity in the two counts, but recount if the difference is great.

"In addition to counting and sexing the horseshoe crabs, we count any dead horseshoe crabs along that beach whether, in the transect or not, just to gain an understanding of how many dead are in that area," she said.

Typically around six volunteers help and Toulan said the half dozen on tap have been helping MCBP for years and thus are familiar with where and how to conduct the survey.

"For this program specifically, the importance (of these volunteers) is being able to cover more ground and survey more areas," Toulan said. "We wouldn't be able to get as many survey sites and conduct as many surveys as we do without the volunteers."

Data from the 2022 survey won't be available until the fall, but Toulan said so far indications are there won't be much variance from the 2021 survey.

"The population has been steady, which is really good," she said. "We haven't seen any major declines but also we haven't seen any drastic increase, which is good. We want steady and stable. We've been conducting this survey since 2002 in the coastal bays and populations have been steady since, it's really great and it's looking like it'll be consistent this year as well."

The survey didn't extend to the very end of the spawning season, which may prompt MCBP to get back out in the surf in July to see just how long the spawning season lasts, Toulan said.

There was also an addition to MCBP's attention to horseshoe crabs this year with the stranded horseshoe crab recovery team, a group of nearly three dozen volunteers that monitors four different locations for stranded horseshoe crabs that they can safely remove and put back into the water. While the survey isn't in need of more volunteers, Toulan said the recovery team is always looking for help.

Protecting horseshoe crabs is vital for three main reasons, Toulan said. First is human health the horseshoe crab's. Their blue blood can be harvested to create Limulus ameocyte lysate, which is used to test injectable drugs to make sure they're safe and that no endotoxins are present.

"Any injectable drug or vaccine you've had will have been tested with horseshoe crab blood to make sure it's safe," Toulan said. "There is a whole biomedical industry revolving around the horseshoe crab."

Secondly, ecologically speaking, horseshoe crabs are vitally important at this time of year because their eggs are a main source of food for dozens of different fish, birds, mammals and reptiles. For instance, the endangered red knot shorebird stops over in this region on its great migration from South America to the Arctic Circle and depends on the eggs to plump up and store the energy needed to complete their flight, Toulan said.

Thirdly, she added that they're used as whelk and eel bait, giving them importance to local fisheries.

And, again, as Toulan points out, horseshoe crabs are not dangerous.

"It's really important that people know that," she said. "They can't hurt you. They don't pinch, sting or bite.

(If helping a stranded horseshoe crab) the proper way to hold it is by the sides of its shell. Never pick it up by the tail, which is very sensitive and very fragile. If that tail breaks, it'll hinder the horseshoe crab's ability to move and flip over if it gets stuck on its back."

Anyone who'd like more information on the stranded horseshoe crab recovery team or to volunteer can contact Toulan at ctoulan@md-coastalbays.org or find more information online at <https://mdcoastalbays.org>.

Rural areas push for home internet

Residents want Worcester to put ARPA funds toward high-speed connections

By Greg Wehner
Staff Writer

(July 7, 2022) The Worcester County Commissioners turned to the public when looking for ways to spend $8.7 million of American Rescue Plan Act money funds sitting in limbo, and the majority of those who spoke during the over 1-hour hearing on June 21 pushed for fast and reliable internet.

The county has received $10,154,000 in ARPA funds – half was received in 2021 and the other half should be coming soon – and up until last month, $3,487,000 was to go toward a sewer project on Lewis Road, Maryland Broadband Cooperative, Riddle Farm Wastewater Treatment Plant, and a grant match with broadband provider Talkie.

The county set aside as much as $2 million for the grant match with Talkie, but that grant fell through, according to Chief Administrator Weston Young.

Now the county has $8,667,000 to put toward public sector revenue loss allowance, public health, and economic response, restoring and supporting public sector capacity, premium pay for essential workers, and water, sewer, and broadband infrastructure.

Commissioner Ted Elder told the commissioners just before opening the public hearing that he wanted to see most of the money go toward broadband because it is something the county needs “desperately.” The commissioner was not alone.

Becky Richardson of Girdletree said access to reliable internet should be available as much as electrical power is to residents. She explained that during the covid-19 pandemic, her school-aged children were unable to do homework because the farmhouse they live in does not have broadband.

Instead, Richardson would take her children up to Snow Hill and other areas with better internet so they could do homework.

“This has to be a big priority,” she told the commissioners, adding she should not have to choose where they live based on the availability of internet service.

Along with being a mother, Richardson is also a nurse and she said she has turned down job offers because of the lack of a hardwired internet connection to her home.

Richardson has spent years in pursuit of some sort of internet for her home, which has been in the family for six generations.

“We’re out in the sticks,” she said. In 2019, Choptank Electric Cooperative proposed bringing internet to all its customers, and at the time, the company said 36 percent of Maryland residents, most of whom live on the Eastern Shore, do not have internet service that meets Federal Communication Commission Standards.

Richardson said when Choptank proposed bringing fiber to every resident in the county, she was relieved and elated.

“Having a hardwired internet connection would be amazing,” she said. But rather than partner with Choptank, Worcester County chose to contract with Talkie.

During the public hearing, Young said the county put out a request for proposals to find a broadband provider and of the two companies that submitted proposals, Talkie was the only one that said it would actively pursue grants.

Grant money could go toward broadband plus fire and EMS

more options, the better.

John Bruning, the chairman of the Farm Bureau, told the county he did not think Talkie was the best option, with only 18 hookups to date.

Christina Parada, another Snow Hill resident, said she agreed with everything everyone said about the need for internet.

She said of her five children, two graduated from Snow Hill and suffered greatly during the pandemic because of the lack of broadband. Parada also criticized the commissioners for not having a committee investigate the pursuit of reliable internet.

Commissioner Jim Bunting kicked back, though, saying it was not as if they were sitting and not doing anything about it.

Responding to questions about why the county did not choose Choptank, Bunting said the company was going to put 50 percent of the fiber on poles, while advisors said they should go underground. He also said the county is aware of all the areas where there is no broadband or reliable internet.

“We need it. Everyone knows this,” Dave Bruning said.

Dave also said he feels like Choptank was left out of the process and meetings.

Commissioner Joe Mitrecic told Bruning that Talkie was offered Rural Digital Opportunity Funds, or RDOF, where Choptank was not. RDOF, he added, means the county can get grants.

Choptank, according to Mitrecic, could do the project for $38 million, but wanted a check up front. The company never mentioned pursuing grants to help pay for the project.

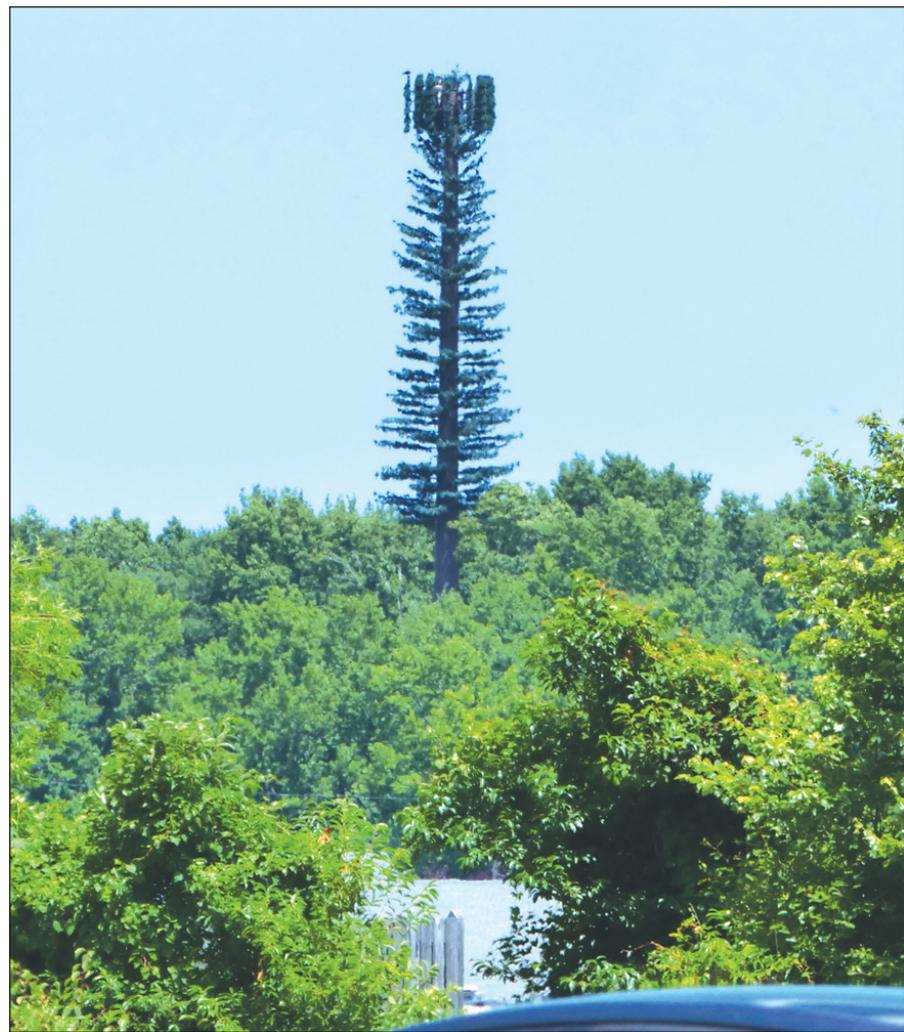

“That’s why the county went with Talkie,” he said. “They had the right to the RDOF funds, Choptank did not.”

Roger Richardson, who lives on Old Furnace Road near Eden, said Somerset has broadband all the way to the county line.

Somerset got the same information as Worcester in terms of matching funds for the project.

“Somewhere along the line, I feel like Worcester County needs to wake up and get with it,” Richardson said.

Along with requests to put the money toward fast and reliable internet, Ocean City Fire Department Chief Richie Bowers requested any leftover funds be considered for the county fire and EMS services.

GREG WEHNER/BAYSIDE GAZETTE

Worcester County Commissioners turned to the public on June 21 to find out how to spend nearly $9 million in ARPA funds, and many people begged them to get fast and reliable internet. Seen in the picture above is a tower dressed up as a tree that provides cellular signal. Many rural areas have to rely on cellular internet, which is spotty at times, to get internet.

EXPERIMENTS

Worcester Preparatory School's pre-kindergarten class recently conducted a series of experiments with eggs being the key ingredients. The "Humpty Dumpty Egg Drop Challenge" had students, along with help from their parents, create parachutes out of household supplies that would protect a hard-boiled egg during a fall and landing. During the "Inertia Egg Drop Experiment" the Law of Inertia was tested. In this case, the egg stays at rest until the plate is moved, allowing gravity to take over. This pulls the egg straight down into the glass because there was no force to change the direction of the egg. (Left) Pictured are PreK students Dylan Brandt, left, and Romie Crevecoeur. (Right) Teacher Kim Zaccagnini preps student Natalie Gjikuria to take a whack at the pie pan for the egg to fall into the glass of water.

OP Golf Members' Council announces '22 scholarships

(July 7, 2022) The Ocean Pines Golf Members' Council recently awarded six scholarships totaling $10,500 to local high school seniors.

The scholarship committee of the Golf Members' Council each year honors students who show an interest in the game of golf and have exemplary academic and extracurricular records.

Bob Long, scholarship committee chairperson, said awards are given on behalf of Ocean Pines Golf Club members who support the fund throughout the year.

Members have raised more than $45,800 for scholarships over the last seven years, including $21,500 during the last two years.

This year, Riley Schoch from Worcester Preparatory School, was named the Scotty Wheatley Scholarship winner.

Wheatley helped significantly boost donation amounts, which had been $2,000-$3,000 each year, prior to 2016.

"Scotty ran the OP-Taylor Bank Scramble for a couple of years and is largely responsible for the increase in awards," Long said. "Scotty died in February 2021, and his family asked that donations in his name be made to our scholarship fund. Over $3,400 was received, and for the past two years we have attached Scotty's name to one of the scholarship awards."

The 2022 Scholarship recipients are:

* Riley Schoch (Worcester Preparatory School) played on the school's golf team for four years and was a team captain this year. He was also captain of the tennis team.

Schoch has excellent academic credentials and was an Advanced Placement Scholar with Honor. Schoch is also a classically trained pianist with many citations and performances.

He was heavily involved in community service and was an officer of his senior class. He is interested in biomedical engineering and plans to attend the University of Maryland.

Schoch was recognized as the Scotty Wheatley Scholarship winner and will receive an award of $3,000.

* Evan Ritz (Stephen Decatur High School) played golf for the school for four years. He helped recruit other students for golf and received a team sportsmanship award.

Academically, Ritz was in the top 10 percent of his class and took advanced placement courses in calculus and environmental science, along with other higher-level courses. He is interested in biology and pre-med studies and plans to attend Salisbury University. Ritz will receive an award of $2,400.

* Abby Wesche (Stephen Decatur High School) played golf at the school for four years and was team co-captain during her junior and senior years.

Wesche is regularly one of the scoring golfers on the SDHS team and played in the first two rounds of the state championships.

She plans to attend McDaniel College in Westminster, to study biology. Wesche will receive an award of $2,400.

* Bennett Tinkler (Worcester Preparatory School) played on the school's golf team for three years. He enjoys golf and his coaches noted his improvement each year.

Tinkler was also the captain and goalie of the lacrosse team and played varsity basketball. Tinkler has a strong academic record, including five AP courses.

Outside the classroom, he was involved in community service and is particularly interested in helping those with autism. His plans are to study business at the University of Maryland. Tinkler will receive an award of $1,500.

* Anna McDonald (Worcester Preparatory School) moved to the area during the start of her junior year, when the pandemic was in full force. That led to her involvement with the golf team.

She also plays recreationally with family members. McDonald also played lacrosse and soccer.

One problem solved: Viola stays on as GM

This summer's Ocean Pines Association election could result in a significant change in the composition of the board of directors, considering that six candidates are vying for the board's three open seats.

That's the sort of thing that politically aware association members might find unsettling. After all, the uneven history of the board has shown that new directors sometimes challenge the status quo, while first-time re-elected members have occasionally viewed their victories as a mandate to assume a more aggressive role in board affairs.

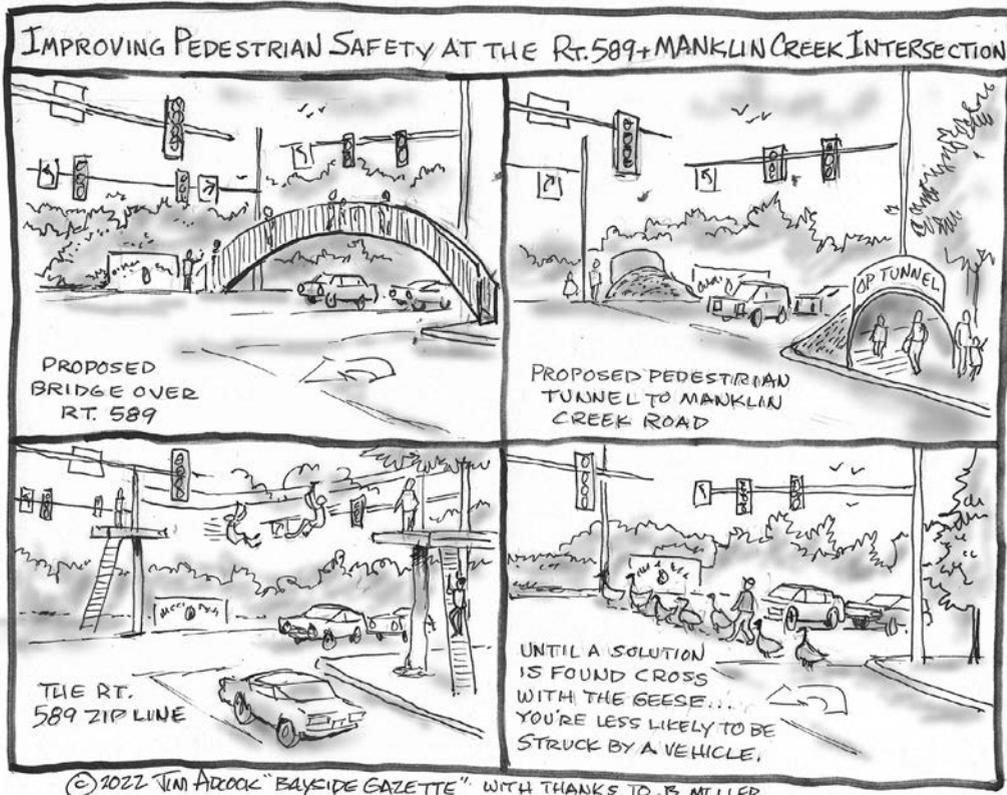

Property owners should not fret unnecessarily, however, as a major component of the status quo will remain intact — the association's proven management.

By urging General Manager John Viola to rescind his resignation and sign a new two-year contract, the current board has assured the community that no matter how the election turns out, association operations will continue to function smoothly.

It may not be a first, but it is one of the few times in recent years when a new board is seated with a trusted and well-respected general manager in place. That advantage alone eliminates one source of possible friction between directors, as no one can dispute that Viola, his department heads and association employees have been making things work financially and operationally.

Obviously, all administrations have their critics for one reason or another, but it's impossible to argue that the community would be better off were the directors to continue to pursue — and argue over — a new general manager who can do what's already being done.

The word this spring was that all Viola needed to stay on for another stint was to be asked. It's impossible to know when the directors realized that, but they did and made the right call at the right time. Now association members can await the election results secure in the knowledge that the operational wheels will keep on turning as they have been.

'Lily the Fairy' coming to OP market

(July 7, 2022) Guests can not only stock up on fresh local produce at the Ocean Pines Farmers & Artisans Market, but it can also be a fun outing for families.

Market Manager David Bean said many shoppers catch up with friends and neighbors at the market. Parents chat while their children play on the adjacent playground at White Horse Park, and families can make dinner plans with all the fresh, local items available each Saturday.

This Saturday at the Kids Market Zone, Kristen Coleman, a children's entertainer, will be dressed as "Lily the Fairy" and will host games and activities starting at 9 a.m.

"Kristen is all about characters, crafts, and community. It's great fun for all ages, including those young at heart," Janice Curtis, market events and happenings coordinator, said.

Coleman works with Shore Fun Parties, a party planning and entertainment service that serves the lower Delmarva peninsula.

"I have always loved being in costume and creating a wonderful experience for all," she said.

The Kids Market Zone is at the corner of the Artisan Plaza and the Crafters Alley, just behind the Pine'er Craft Shop.

For some toe-tapping fun this Saturday, shoppers can also enjoy the music of singer/guitarist Sarah Campbell when she takes the market stage at 9 a.m.

A favorite of market shoppers, Campbell plays traditional country and bluegrass sounds and appears at the market regularly throughout the year.

The market is open Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. in White Horse Park. For more information, visit www.oceanpines.org/web/pages/farmers-artisans-market.

Leap of Faith church's 40th anniversary kicks off Sun.

(July 7, 2022) A Leap of Faith-Community Church at Ocean Pines is celebrating its 40th anniversary beginning Sunday July 10, and culminating with a party on Sept. 18.

On July 10, Reverend Dale Brown will welcome and introduce guest speaker District Superintendent Rev. Christina (Tina) Blake.

From its modest beginnings, the church has kept its witness alive and strong for four decades. The original congregation had the vision to establish this church, and in anticipation of God's blessings, with A Leap of Faith, they have sustained its growth into the future.

Located initially in the Ocean Pines Community Center, CCAOP has become well known for its outreach programs including Shephard's Nook Thrift Store and Little Lambs Day Care.

The public is invited to 11227 Racetrack Road (Rt. 589) for worship either at 8, 9:15 or 10:30 a.m. The Sunday services will center on references to the original service from July 10, 1982 through the present.

All are welcome.

Seared lamb with Alabama white sauce

(Reprint from July 9, 2020)

Is there anything better than a hunk of fresh fish or a freshly seared steak to bring a smile to your face?

By Paul Suplee,
MBA, CEC, PC-3

I mean, unless you are a vegan, something I greatly admire, there is something so satiating about a beautiful piece of meat adorning a simple plate.

Last week, I ran across an online store selling Australian lamb loin. It is such a beautiful cut of meat, and I remember it fondly.

Truth be told, it was not unusual for me to take a small snip off the end of the loin as we were plating up.

Snacks are a critical benefit for the cook. Rather, I guess I can say that it was quality control. After all, I needed to ensure that we were serving the best product possible.

So, having received the loin yesterday, it was time to just get a little old fashioned with it.

We're talking well-spiced, seared in a cast iron pan, over fire.

The main difference is that in years past, I've coated the loin in ras el hanout, the ubiquitous Moroccan spice blend. Today, I just hit it with my own simple blend.

At the restaurant, we serve a basil puree with our seafood risotto (which was removed from the menu due to this silly pandemic and staffing issues) and sometimes with steak specials.

It is a loose play on a chimichurri, but it is more accurate to call it a puree. We also use it on the Caprese salad, as I have never been a fan of raw basil leaves with fresh tomato.

The puree is a natural fit with the lamb, and if you have never made it, take the time, especially if you have a basil bush in the backyard, as many of us do.

As for the Alabama White BBQ Sauce, something else that we have always had at the restaurant, it goes exceedingly well with any of your meats, whether they be smoked or grilled. It also pairs well with smoked fish.

The final tip in this stimulating tome is from famed French chef Fernand Point from 60 years ago, with a small twist.

An eternal prankster, his short book Ma Gastronomie is a wonderful tribute to his work, and the foreword by Chef Paul Bocuse was exceptional. Point had a local fisherman friend whose boat he hid once a year on the man's birthday, one year even hiding it up in a tree.

The year before Point's death, on said anniversary, the fisherman looked high and low all throughout the town. He looked for hours.

Exhausted, he pleaded to Point to learn the whereabouts of his boat. Point had not touched it. It was right in the slip, where he left it. Man, I love that story.

And the tip has nothing to do with a boat or pranks. It simply comes from Chef Point. And the tip is to use half clarified butter and half oil, the latter which raises the flash point.

That's it. Super simple. And if there is anything that will elevate a seared chunk of meat, it is going to be the proper fat in which to cook it.

Seared Lamb Loin, Cracked Pepper Spice

per person

- 1 ea. 8 oz. lamb loin
- 1 Tbsp. Vegetable oil
- 1 Tbsp. Clarified butter
- 1 Tbsp. Cracked Pepper Spice (recipe follows)
- 2 oz. Basil puree (recipe follows)
- 2 oz. Alabama White BBQ sauce (recipe follows)
- Pat the loin(s) dry when ready to sear. Season with the cracked pepper spice and allow to sit for about 15 minutes at room temperature

- Heat oil and butter in a cast iron pan until hot

- Carefully place the seasoned loin on the oil and cook for 2 ½ minutes

- Assuring that you have a good crust after this time, turn the loin over and remove the pan from the flame. It will continue to cook due to the residual heat stored in the cast iron

- Check the temperature, as it should be at a perfect medium rare. If it's ready, allow it to rest for a few minutes

- Remove from pan, slice and serve with the sauces, drizzling any pan drippings on the meat

Cracked Pepper Spice

makes 1 cup

- 1/2 c. Large flake kosher or sea salt
- 2 Tbsp. Cracked black pepper corns
- 2 Tbsp. Granulated garlic
- 2 Tbsp. Onion powder
- 1 Tbsp. Thyme
- 1 Tbsp. Smoked paprika

- Combine all ingredients well and set aside in an airtight container until ready to use

Basil Puree

makes about a pint

A large handful of basil leaves, with a small amount of stem

- 1 c. EV Olive oil
- 1 c. Good red wine vinegar
- Salt & Pepper, to taste

- Blend everything today, adjusting the seasoning at the end

- Refrigerate until ready to use. It will be light in color, as you have just incorporated a great deal of air into it. As it settles, it will turn a deep green

Alabama White BBQ Sauce

makes about a quart

- 2 c. Duke's Mayonnaise
- 3 Tbsp. Sour cream
- 2 Tbsp. White vinegar
- 1 tsp. Ground black pepper
- 2 tsp. Granulated garlic
- 2 Tbsp. Coarse ground mustard
- 1/2 tsp. Sugar
- Salt, as needed
- 2 Tbsp. Horseradish

- Combine everything with a whisk and refrigerate until ready to use. This is better when it gets to sit overnight or so
